LOCAL BRIEFS. - The dust is stifling.

- The Mayor's Court was a failure, yesterday. - The fragrant fertilizer continues to come in

- The farmers are busily engaged in plowing and few come to town except those who come for fertilizers.

- A young lady fainted yesterday morning in Christ Church during the services, causing a flutter in the congregation.

-Our dispatches tell this morning that Raleigh is included in the sundry civil appropriation bill, for $5,300, to go to the government building. - The photographs of the mem bers of the General Assembly are displayed in group in front of the galleries of both Messrs. Watson and Shelburne. - His Excellency the Governor yesterday issued the commissions to the officers of the Charlotte Greys, whose names appear in another connection. -Legislative reports are brief this morning. The Senate was engaged, vesterday, with the machinery bill and the House with the revenue bill, and so it was an off day with the reporters. - The Raleigh Light Infantry, aded by Thompson's Silver Cornet Band, paraded the streets, forty strong, vesterday afternoon, and the banks of the city were closed all day long. All in honor of Gawge.

- We learn that the Wilmington & Weldon Railroad is preparing to remove the bridge across Quankee at Halifax town, a couple of hundred yards up the creek, to avoid the grade, which is now the heaviest on the line of the road.

- Sheriff John D. Davis, of Carteret, vesterday, had incarcerated in the penitentiary Wright Bradley, colored, who was convicted of manslaughter at the recent term of Carteret court and sentenced to two years imprisonment.

- Sheriff Dunn has removed his office from the court house to the room between the law office of A. M. Lewis, Esq., and the Sentinel office, where he will receive persons desiring to pay

--- The Governor yesterday issued his commission to Judge W. A. Moore, author zing him to hold the pending terms of Tyrrell and Dare courts, instead of Judge R. H. Cannon, who is now riding that circuit, but who has been called home by the illness of his family.

Yesterday afternoon when the old white woman was shot, in Exchange Place, a gentleman went to the livery stable of John O'Kelly, colored, to hire a conveyance in which to take her home. John freely offered the conveyance and horses for the purpose, and when money was proffered him, he in a commendable spirit absolutely declined it.

Application for Arms. C. W. Alexander, Esq., of Charlotte, arrived in the city yesterday, and made application to His Excellency the Governor for 80 Springfield rifles for the use of the Charlotte Greys. This company was organized in 1861, and went out to the war with the first regiment of North Carolina volunteers. It has just been re-organized with the following officers : Captain-W. L. Hand ; First Lieutenant-C. W. Alexander ; Second Lieutenant-W. B. Taylor ; Third Lieutenant-R. B. Alexander,

The company now has 63 men, and it is expected that the number will soon be increased to 100. They will be uniformed in grey, and have made application for the bronze rifle. The application was favorably considered, and the company will be furnished with arms poutrements as early as possible.

The Temperance Movement-

Hon. Neal Dow. Theo. N. Ramsay, G. W. C. T., informs us that Hon. Neal Dow, from the State of Maine, will speak in North Carolina during the month of April. Neal Dow has a national reputation as a temperance advocate and will doubtless attract crowds to hear him. He is the father of the Maine liquor law and is thoroughly posted on all legal points connected with temperance laws. In a letter to Mr. Ramsay Mr. Dow says: "Our State Legislature this week will pass a more stringent law for the suppression of the liquor traffic in the State of Maine." The temperance men of the city are thoroughly organizing with a view of voting the rum mills out of Raleigh on the first Monday in May, and are confident of gaining the victory. The battle will be fought with much interest and we may expect a lively time.

Death of a Venerable Lady. Many people in this city and State will learn with regret of the death of Miss Elizabeth Haywood, daughter of the late Hon. John Haywood, who was for so long the State Treasurer, and sister of the venerable Dr. F. J. Haywood. Miss Haywood was one of the oldest residents of the city, being at the time of her death 79 years of age, and was a lady who was universally beloved. One of many bright womanly qualities, amiable and sympathetic in her disposition, a lady of great worth in all respects, she drew around her a large circle of friends who esteemed her while living and who will cherish and revere her memory now that she is dead.

We learn that Capt. E. C. Woodson will soon form a connection with the Daily Observer of this city. We shall welcome him to the lists. The Randolph Regulator has this: "T. C. Worth, formerly of our town, but now of the treasury department at Raleigh, arrived at his old home in Asheboro on Saturday, the 17th inst., on a visit of recreation among his numerous friends and early associates. All were glad to see him and will be sorry to part with him."

Talk of Changing the County

Since the burning of the town of Smithfield, Johnston county, about a week ago, the question of moving the county seat to Selma, on the line of the North Carolina Railroad, is again mooted. Senator Waddell, of Johnston, vesterday presented in the Senate a bill looking to this end and also a memorial on the same subject. The question of moving the county seat has been the cause of a good deal of trouble, in times past, in Johnston county, and there bids fair now to be a revival of the former Cisturbances.

The Committee on the State Debt--Another Meeting. The joint committee of both houses of the General Assembly on the subject of the State debt, held another meeting, yesterday afternoon. in the treasury department, and discussed at length the several propositions which had been submitted by the committee of bondholders and by the members of this committee. The bond-holders were not present at this meeting, either in person or by counsel. Nothing absolutely definite was arrived at, but the matter of adjusting the debt took, perhaps, a more specific form than it had hitherto done. A proposition, submitted by a member of the committee, that this General Assembly take no steps at all towards paying the debt, was voted down. Another proposition, that the act of 1874-'75 be re-enacted, went the same course. This act provided for the payment of forty cents on the dollar, principal and interest, of the anti-war debt, and thirty cents, principal and interest, on the valid indebtedness of the State contracted since

A proposition, which met considerable favor from the committee, was one which provides something like this: That the State pay thirty-three and onethird per cent. and twenty-five cents interest on all the anti-war debt, and twenty-five per cent. and twenty of interest on all the recognized debt contracted subsequent to the war, provided, this does not entail a tax levy exceeding ten cents, and provided further, that the amount raised upon this basis shall not exceed $6,000,000. It was manifestly the sense of a majority of the committee present that the General Assembly be recommended to pass a bill containing about these provisions, and Messrs. Graham and Moring were appointed a sub-committee to make calculations and learn if a revenue of $6,-000,000 can be raised by a tax of ten cents on the one hundred dollars, and to learn how nearly such a tax would approximate thirty-three and one-third and twenty-five per cent. of the debt of the State.

It should be stated that several memrs of the com and that, by reason of this, the full sense of the committee was not had. The indications are, and we judge this after a tolerably free intercourse with the members, that the present General Assembly will take no steps at all looking to a settlement of the State debt.

Accidentally Shot. An old white woman named Mary Watkins, who has long followed peddling kindling wood about the streets of Raleigh, was shot through the shoulder yesterday, by Mr. Wilton V. Andrews, a young man from Chatham, under the following circumstances: John Smith, a young man of this county, has a stand on Wilmington street, near the east end of the market house, for the sale of prize candy-one of the prizes being a four-barreled pistol. Smith had been showing the pistol, the manner of loading it, &c., to bystanders, during the day, and Andrews had seen and handled it several times, Eventually, Smith put a ball cartridge in the pistol, and just as he had done so, some one bought a stick of candy and Smith laid the pistol down to make hange At this moment Andrews again came up and took up the pistol and pulled the trigger, when to his surprise, it fired, lodging the ball in the shoulder of Mary Watkins, who was standing near. The ball entered behind and came out in front of the left shoulder.

Dr. Peter E. Hines was called in and on examining the wound gave it as his opinion that the ball passed through above the cavity of the lungs and, though painful, was not dangerous. The old woman is very poor, and has at her home, seven miles from the city. five little children dependent upon the pittances which the mother made by bringing lightwood to the city and selling it. The case is one which appeals strongly to charitable people, and we bring it to the attention of such. Anything which a family can utilize as food will be acceptable. Those who do not desire to give money will do a good deed by leaving provisions at the Mayor's office to be applied to the relief of the suffering family.

The Old Folks' Concert.

We learn that the Old Folks' Concert at Peace Institute, next Thursday night. will embrace many new features, both in the music and the general stage effect. From what we can gather as to the character of the entertainment we feel safe in recommending the public to expect more, if possible, than was given at the former concert. We understand that a number of new costumes have been received from abroad especially for the occasion. We hope to announce the programme in a few days.

Farmers wishing to buy Bradley's Standard Guanos would do well to send in their orders to Geo. T. Stronach & Co., as early as possible, as their engagements are large, and they are only receiving 100 tons a week. They sell for 400 lbs., first picking.

Shoots Two Men and Escapes. On the night of the 5th inst, Mr. Peterson Dunu, who lives near Neuse Depot, some ten miles from this city, on the Raleigh & Gaston Railroad, had a mule stolen from his stables. He traced it up until Monday last, when he found it in the possession of Mr. R. H. Saunders, a most respectable and substantial citizen of Nash county. He had traded a horse for the mule, giving $20 difference. Mr. Saunders described the man with whom he had traded, and the description answered exactly to a neighbor of Mr. Dunn's, Mr. Edward Wallace. Mr. Saunders came up, yesterday, and went with an officer of the law and found Wallace who, on last Saturday, moved to Barton's Creek township. He was in the field plowing Mr. Saunders. horse, and he identified him as the man from whom he got the mule. He was at once arrested and taken to Mr. Ridley. Jones', when he was placed under strong guard, his character being that of a very desperate and bad man. Watching his opportunity, he seized a large navy revolver, belonging to one of the guard, and instantly shot Mr. Henry Harrison, a worthy citizen living near Mr. Dunn's, the ball entering just above the right hip and ranging through to the spine. A physician extracted the ball and it is hoped the wound is not fatal. After shooting Harrison, Wallace took deliberate aim at Mr. Gaston II. Moonyhan, who fortunately escaped. Wallace then made his escape and has not yet been captured. There is great excitement and indignation in the entire neghborhood, and every effort will be made to arrest the offender. Wallace is of low, chunky statue, about five feet five inches high, has black curly hair and black moustache. talks very softly, complexion dark. It is hoped that he will be "passed around" and arrested.

During the war he went to Mr. Dunn's house, representing himself a wounded Confederate soldier, but it was soon discovered that he was a Yankee spy and as such was arrested and started to Richmond, but on the way jumped from the moving train and made his escape. Since the war he has returned to Wake county and married.

Both houses are well patronized, and continue to be famous as resorts for the most distinguished artists, diplomate, and sciops of nobility. Official Letter from Bishop Gib-

We see from the papers that Right Rev. James Gibbons, Bishop of Richmond and Vicar Apostolic of North Carolina, has issued an official circularletter in which he urges upon the clergy and the faithful of his diocese the propriety of joining with the Catholi: world in commemorating, in a suitable manner, the fiftieth anniversary of the Episcopal consecration of Pope Pius IX, which occurs on the 21st of May. To secure concerted action in this matter he requests each clergyman to announce to their respective congregations that a collection will be taken up in all the churches of the diocese, on the 25th day of February, the second Sunday in Lent. The amount collected, together with the list of the names of the contributors, will be forwarded as early as practicable to the Richmond secretary of the diocese (Rev. F. Janssens), so that the offerings, together with the donors' names, may be presented in due time to the Holy Father. In view of this extraordinary appeal the Bishop states that the usual annual collection for the Pope will be omitted this year.

Harper's Magazine. ILLUSTRATED. NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The Magazine has attained in its one quart er century and more of existence in that point where it may be said of, in the words of Dr. Johnson, "It is vain to blame and useless to praise." The lustre of its long-ago-attained reputation has increased as the years have passed, and its future seems as bright if not prighter than at any time since the golden hue of prosperity settled around its later and best years.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Harper's Monthly is marked by the 'a ne characteristics which gave it circulation from the first with the better class of readers. It combines leading matter with illustrations in a way to make clear and vivid the facts present d. Pictures merely designed to catch the eye of the ignorant are never inserted.—Chicago Journal.

THE Republicans of Philadelphia carried the city election, Tuesday, by a reduced majority. The Times alleges that the election was carried by fraud, and calls upon the people to resist.

PRESIDENT GRANT did a foolish and very small thing in refusing to allow the white military companies of South Carolina to parade on Washington's birthday. The purpose of the President is questionable power, are bringing on to preserve the peace in this State, and he feared that some disturbance might arise from such parades! There was great indignation among the citizen-soldiery, but the order of Grant was strictly obeyed.

Our talented correspondent "W. J. G." throws into clear relief the enormity of the offence done by the Commission in being governed by party spirit in its decisions. The Republicans in that unjust tribunal- Bradley especialyrichly deserve to be held up to public seorn and contempt. The whole country is shocked at the partisan action of Commission and the expressions of "W. J. G." may be taken as a fair representation of the prevailing sentiment of the country. JOHN G. MARLER, Esq., Senaator from Yadkin and Surry countties, died at his home in Yadkinville, Yadkin county, on the 17th inst., after a long and lingering illness. Both as a private and public man, Mr. Marler was held in high esteem. In all the posi tions of trust to which he was called by the confidence of his fellow-citizens, he acquitted himself with ability and integrity. In the private relations of life, his character was without blemish. In Ir will be recollected, says the Washington Union, that Mr. Helper, the author of "The impending Crisis," turned Democrat and dedicated his pen to satisfying his former converts that the man and brother and the missing link were one and the same ligament between the higher and lower orders of creation. And now comes Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, whose "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was a political and social brand that could not be quenched. This lady has been dwelling in Florida for many seasons, and she arises to the defense of the Southern people in an earnest and honest way. She assures the ignorant and bigoted people of the North that if they go South with good intent they will receive good treatment; that the reports of inhospitality, rudeness, or intimidation, are untrue. The sooner this fact is understood the better for both sections.

Col. S. D. Pool has re-established the "Southern Historical Monthly." The number for January, 1877, is upon our table, containing the following explanatory notice from the editor:

In January, 1876, this, the initial number of our Magazine, was printed; but owing to financial troubles, to the absorbing interest aroused by the early opening of the Centennial Exhibition, and the great political excitement of the then pending Presidential election, it was deemed advisable to take no other steps towards the circulation of the Magazine than a partial distribution of the first number and the procurement of an endorsement of the enterprise by leading men of the South. The February number, which was also printed last year, but not circulated for reasons above stated, is now being distributed.

The recent passage of the Eelectoral Bill by Congress, and its approval by the President, having removed all danger of trouble growing out of the Presidential question, after mature consideration it has been determined to continue the publication of the Magazine. The March number, 1877, will be issued March 20th, and succeeding numbers regularly thereafter. The table of contents of this first number is quite attractive. The articles upon the Battle of Gettysburg are especially valuable. We commend this magazine to the good graces of the reading public. A vast amount of very valuable Southern history can be preserved through this instrumentality, and we trust that the enterprising publisher may be liberally sustained in his efforts.

VIEWS OF A NORTH CARO LINA CONGRESSMAN.

We are permitted to publish the folowing, from a letter addressed to a gentleman in this city from a distinguished representative of North Carolina in Congress: "The decisions the Commission are, in my judgment, grossly wrong in strict law-they are outrageous and monstrous in establishing frauds and crimes against certain States in particular and the American people generally. They are about to deprive the people of their duly chosen ruler and fasten upon them one not duly chosen. I feel deep indignation at such a course of action on the part of a majority of the Commission, but I shall not allow my passions to run away with my judgment. I am not inclined to do so, and I am sure the people do not expect me to do do so-on the contrary, they expect and require that I shall coolly and calmly endeavor to protect them, their peace, liberty and happiness, as nearly and fully as I can, I shall not willingly disappoint their just expectaions. I will not be misled by the clamor and excitementof the hour. and I shall do, all our delegation will do, the whole Democratic party will do, all in our power, according to the Constitution and laws, to defeat the result which now seems imminent-the declaration of the election of Haves and Wheeler. This we ought to do, must do, in an orderly, regular way. Any other course of action might lead to disastrous results-it might lead to armed conflict. One thing is manifest, it can do the country no good-it will certainly do the South and the Democratic party great harm. Our friends from the South stand before the country as the conservative power in Congress and they will justify us in the future conflicts that will surely come. This is not our last opportunity-the future may be ours. Let us not now by rash action destroy or impair our prospects of future success. The Republican party, by taking unjust, dishonest, outrageous and monstrous advantage of more than themselves certain destruction. "The view I have expressed is my own, and I believe that a large majority of our political associates take a like view of the situation. You may be sure that nothing will be left undone to defeat the purposes of the adversary that we ought to do, but we hope to live after this occasion.

"There is deep feeling here, but I do not apprehend any outbreak. I do not hope for success. We can only make iniquity and wrong more manifest."

MR. STAPLES' AMENDMENT. The Hillsboro Recorder has this to Mr. Staples, exempting capital invested in manufactures from taxation for a period of years :

On the first blush this may appear to be legislation in favor of the rich or of the few. But it will not bear such construction. It is the first step to take to make this State what nature intended it. one of the first manufacturing States in the Union. Its effects upon our own people would be to attract investments from among our own citizens and divert their hoardings or their earnings to useful enterprises at home. Its effect else-where would be to attract manufactures from abroad, over-crowded at home and crippled by sharp competition, to this State where the usual consequences would follow—the stimulation of all industries, the increase of population, the encouragement of agriculture by the provision of near and good markets, the diffusion of money, the increase of subjects of taxation, the enhancement of State revenue, and the diminution of the burden of taxation upon the many,

The Hayes Inaugural-Policy Towards the South.

[pecial dispatch to the Baltimore Sun.] WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Intimate friends of Gov. Hayes say that his insugural address will be so moderate and conservative in tone and policy that, barring the popular distrust, engendered by the peculiar circumstances of his accession to the Presidency, it is sure to be received with favor. It is said that the sentiments which he will express concerning the affairs of the Southern States will be particularly pleasing to that section; that his policy will be a reversal of the Southern policy of the present administration; that he will allow the people of the Southern States dividing the waters falling into the Atto manage their own internal affails just as the people of the other States of the Union do, subject, of course, to the constitution and the laws of the United States, and guaranteeing that the indi-vidual rights of the citizens shall be equally respected and preserved. Gov. Haves and his friends say they want to build up an administration par-ty at the South which shall not be conty at the South which shall not be confined to the negroes and the carpet-baggers, but shall include a large element of the property and intelligence of that section. To the accomplishment of this end it is very probable that the Republican policy will be, among other things, to afford Federal aid to schemes of internal improvement in the South. To do this however will necessitate a do this, however, will necessitate a heavy increase of the bonded debt, and it is doubtful whether the manufacturers and capitalists of the North, and the anti-coupon elippers of the West would view such an idea with approval. The latter would probably favor an inflation of the currency to the extent of a hundred million or two, which idea would also be popular, perhaps, in other quarters. But it is at least a question of doubt whether the time has not passed when the policy of Feberal subsidies to internal improvements can meet the approval of the people at large, or of a majority of their representatives in Congress. And, lastly, even if such a policy could be put into successful execution, there need be no question that the South will eheerfully receive all the material aid that may be extended to build up her trade and commerce, but it is ers and capitalists of the North, and the

It is safe to assert that there is no part of that vast extent of country, which lies between the St. Lawrence and the Gulf of Mexico, that is so slightly known, and so little appreciated, as the mountain-region of North Carolina. While the White Mountains and the Adirondacks are yearly thronged with tourists, and the mountains of Virginia have been for half a century known to pleasure-seekers, these wild and beautiful highlands are to-day less visited, less written of, and less talked of, than the defiles of the Sierra Nevada and the peaks of the Rocky Mountains, Comparatively speaking, indeed, there are few persons who are even aware that dividing the waters falling into the At-lantic Ocean from those of the Missis-sippi Valley, and its bold and beautiful heights are better known than the grauder steeps of the western chain. It abounds in scenery of the most romantic description. The streams that burst from the brows of the mountains leap down their sides in unnumbered flashing cascades, while cliffs and palisades of rock diversify the splendid sweep of towering peaks and lofty pinnacles, where scene. One feels that if any spot of care holds a charm for a weary body, or disquieted spirit, that charm is here. On the western side of this "la the sky" runs the chain of the Smoky—comprising the groups Iron, the Unaka, and the Roan tains-which, from its mag form and general elevation, is the master-chain of the whole Alleghany range, Though its highest summits are a fer feet lower than the peaks of the Black Mountain, it presents a continuous series of high peaks which nearly ap proach that altitude—its culminating point, Clingman's Dome, rising to the height of six thousand six hundred and sixty feet. Though its magnitude is much greater than that of the Blue Ridge, this range is cut at various points by the mountain-rivers, which with resistless impetuosity tear their way through the heart of its superb heights in gorges of terrific grandeur. Scenery grand as any which tourists cross a continent to admire is buried in these remote fastnesses, utterly unknown save to the immediate inhabitants of the country and a few adventurous spirits who have penetrated thither. For the wild magnificence of the scenes along its water-ways, Western North Caroli

CRAZY DONN PIATT. The President Bent Upon Prosecuting the Lunatic of Washington Journalism.

(Special dispatch to the Philadelphia Times.) WASHINGTON, Feb. 19. Donn Piatt well have fine nuts to crack in next Sunday's Capital. President Grant actually sent for Attorney-General and District Attorney Wells, of this district, this morning, and in high dudgeon laid before them the doubleleaded in vesterday's Capital, in which there was the cold-blooded suggestion that unless Hayes was not shot durin his ride from the Capitol to the White louse, Americans had lost their virility or something of that kind. Lamp-posts and hangings were also suggested, and for this the President has ordered divers indictments to be drawn, in which Piatt shall be the defendant, and the grand jury, which is now sitting, are to e called upon at once. One of the indictments is to be framed under an act which provides that every person who incites, sets on foot or assists or engages in any rebellion against the authority of the United States, or the laws thereof, shall be guilty of treason and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment or ten thousand dollars, or both, and perpetual incapacity from holding office. libel at common law will also be the burden of one of the indictments, unless the whole thing is laughed out of court.

There is also a large engraving from a fine portrait of Guilbert Stuart painted by himselfthis accompanying Miss Stuart's reminiscenceof her father, entitled "The Youth of Gilbert Swart " and containing arec lotes of Benjamin West, Sir Joshua Reynolds and others. A single illustration is given with Dr. Holland's "Nicholas Minsurn," the motive of which is discovered to lie in the discussion of probleme connected with mendicant classes in all ranks of society. Of Mrs. Burnett's serial, "That Lass o' Lowrie's," there is a dramatic install. ment, and Sammy Craddock continues his readings of "Rebinson Crusoe" with the aid of a "Manyensis." The other fiction of the number consists of the concluding half of "Farmer Bassett's Romance," by Saxe Holm, the author dropping into poetry; a light, cheerful story, "Celestial Peas," by Isabella T. THE WIFE'S REVERIE.

BY SANE HOLM, IN "FARMER BASSETT'S RO-MANCE," SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY. O Heart of mine, is our estate,-One sweet estate—of joy assured?
It came so slow, it came so late,
Fought by such bitter pains endured;
Lare we forget those sorrows sore,
And think that they w.ll come no more?

With tearful eyes I scan my face, And doubt how he can find it fair;
Mistful, I watch each charm and grace
I see that other women wear;
Of all the secrets of love's lore,
I know but one, to love him more!

I see each day, he grows more wise, itis life is breader farthan mine; I must be he king in his eyes. In many things where others shine. O Heart! can we this loss restore To him, by simply loving more?

I often see upon his brew, A look half tender and balf stern; His thoughts are far away, I know; To fathom them, I vainly yearn; But nought is ours which went before; O Heart! we can but love nim more! I sometimes think that the he had loved An older, deeper love, apart From this which later feebler moved His soul to mine. O Heart! O Heart! What can we do? This hurteth sore. Nothing, ms Heart, but love him more!

HARMONY.

BY MRS. ANNE LYNCH BOTTA. He who with bold and skillful hand sweeps The organ keys of some cathedral pile. Flooding with music vault and nave and alsie.
While on his ear fal's but a thunderous roar,—
In the composer's lotty motive free.
Knows well that all that temple vast and dim,
Thrills to its base with authem, psain, or

hymn,
True to the changeless laws of harmony.
So he who on these clanging chords of life,
With firm, sweet touch plays the Great Masof Truth and Love and Duty, evermore, knows too, that far beyond this roar and strife.

Though he may never hear, in the true time,
Though he must all accord in symphonics sublime. -Seribner for March.

Party Spirit vs. Public Opinion.

To the Editor of the News: Sin:-Macauly tells of an English nobleman who was false to everything in life save party. Vows, oaths, friendof right should be, a strong ingredient in noble natures few will deny, for kept within proper bounds it is tantamount to public spirit; unrestrained by principle, however, and it degenerates into a Tricksters and demagogues, forsooth. evince a wonderful devotion to part under the spur of reciprocal attachment, and would sacrifice moral obligations on the altar of party success if their own was but commensurate. Some even, through pride of opinion. Not so the patriot. He recognizes the binding napatriot. He recognizes the blading have ture of party shackles so long as they inure to the good of his country. Consider the good of his country and the good of his country. Consider the good of his country. Consider the good of his country and the good of his country. Consider the good of his country and his country and vince him that they no longer do, and any standing army in Europe; with all he regards them as little as would a the accumulated capital in the hands of Titan the meshes of a cobweb. Little men of small minds and lax principles, like little flies, are caught and held by such gossamer network. Adhesion to party, with such, engenders in time a behalf. And of what avail? contempt for public opinion. Woe to him who makes the choice, and to the made up of criminals who have escaped people whose majority so elect.

Within the past three months we cheat the country out of its all their efforts vain and saddle upon legally elected President begun, them the old corruption and old borde continued and persevered in by the majority in one house of Congress and the minority in the other until it has the minority in the minority in the minority in the minority i finally culminated in the success of their justices of the Supreme Court—for that, negarious purpose. Better the same of him who fired the Ephesian Dome than of those who sapped the Constitution of their country and subverted its liberties.

It was said by one of old, to extenuate a kindred crime: "Let justice always be done, except when Empire is invol ved." Our three heroes have conformed to the saving clause, but their's is not even the excuse of the daring usurper who dazzled by the glitter of a crown enslaves a kingdom. Genius and other God-like attributes in such an one may daze the eyes of public opinion, present and posterior, to the enormity of the crivae. But nothing can induce it to look with leniency on the base tools by whom the crime was wrought. The verdict may be palliative to the extent, "t.ue to their official creation and instincts. For it is fitting that the creatures of self-convicted blackguard, and would-be tyrant, should lend him a telping hand at a pinch even to seating a usurping successor. It is not the first time that one of these worthies has evinced a disposition to repay his master for his promotion. The reversal of the Legal Tender decision surely ought to have constituted a cancellation of the debt. But his and their gratitude for the unexpected bonor seems boundless. They have now given the highest proof of party zeal and magisterial devotion. The Tauner knew his men, so did the Senate. The House of Representatives did not. The world knows them now, and posterity will know them hereafter. Heaven help the man, or men, the mention of whose name is coupled with an honest curse. W. J. G.

The High Commission--Evarts and Merrick--Wild Rumor--A Probable Decision To-morrow.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 .- The evidence submitted showed that Watts resigned by telegraph Nov. 13. The resignation was accepted by telegraph Nov. 14. A special agent took charge of the office. Watts' account with the postoffice department was not closed until Jan. 1. Mr. Evarts after referring to the po-sition his side took in the Florida and Louisiana cases, he said it was the same to-day in the case of Oregon. In Oregon a peaceful election was held in accordance law. A result was obtained which was acquiesced in by the people, and that the result was lodged where by

He had, in the case of Florida, asked that they go behind the certificate of the Governor and had isked that the voice of Florida, which had been simulated, might be heard through her legislative and judicial departments. The other side had taken ssue and claimed that there could be 10 going behind the certificate of the Governor, based on the canvass, but he vas at a loss to know where it had been shown that there ever was a canvass of tors was based. Were they to assume the debate. that there was anything so sacred in the act of the returning boards as to prevent an inquiry into their acts? No. | carry it to a conference. The answer was that when their acts were confirmed in accordance with the laws of the State, the inquiry was checked. In Louisiana and Florida ney had passed beyond the certificate they had fixed them so that there could be no internecine strife, if each adhered to the lines the fathers had drawn. The decision of this tribunal must rest in the confidence of the people, if it rested in their confidence at all, on some great principle of State's rights, as compared with Federal authority. If it rested upon technical grounds the people would not receive it in confidence and

Who was to deter-Florida case it was claimed that the power to determine rested in the returning board. In Oregon, he claimed, the power to issue the certificate carried with it the perquisite of determining to whom they should be issued. To withhold the certificate from a party deemed to be disqualified was, he submitted, the legitimate execution of an executive trust. In the other cases it was claimed that the only time when an error could be corrected was between the counting of the votes and the time when the electors entered upon their duties. It was precisely at this time that this much abused Governor attempted to Customs at Alexandria, Va.; Mills at rescue the State from the odium of a Richmond, Va.

Referring to Mr. Mathews' allusion to a conspiracy, and the cipher telegrams between Grammercy Park and Oregon, Mr. Merrick said no such evidence was offered, and had it been offered they They would not have objected. the truth and nothing but the truth. Mr. Merrick continued his defence of the act of the Governor and said his certificate was conclusive session of the certificate which the Governor had placed in his hands Cronin was de facto an elector. Which was the elector Cronin or Watts? What other papers in the possession of the sword worn by the Con could be made?

Mr. Merrick said it had been shown abstract were very different papers, and if it had been intended as the canvass the certificate should have certified that it was a canvass. Judge Miller asked what Mr. Merrick meant by a canvass of the votes? Mr. Merrick replied that he meant a sifting of the votes. Here were the votes to be counted, he would sift them and return the canvass. This the Secretary of State had not certified to. He next insisted that a certified copy of no paper in the office of the Secretary of State of Oregon could be set up in opposition to the certificate of the Governor, signed by the Secretary of State and sealed with the broad seal of the State. No mere certified copy of an abstract of the votes could be set up against it. Mr. Merrick briefly contended that the constitution did execute itself and cited authorities in support of his position.

In reference to the vacancy he contended that if Odell and Cartwright filled a vacancy they did so on the signature of Watts and not on the absence of Cronin, who, holding the certificate, was a bona fide elector. The law, he said, provided for a vacancy occasioned &c. A word of limited meaning which did not cover a vacancy existing. Mr. Merrick closed with a request to the Commission to adhere to the decisions in the cases of Louisiana and Florida. It mattered little whether they conformed to his views or not, the people would judge the decisions. But it was essential that they should stand unchallenged by the by power which they were pronounced. He said the people looked upon the Supreme Court as an idol and cherished it as above reproach. When they lost their confidence in it then indeed the night had come. At half-past 4 o'clock the commission took the case and a result is expected momentarily.

LATER. There is wild rumor that a proposiion to count Oregon two for Hayes and one for Tilden, and two votes were recorded aye, Abbott and Bradley, when Gartield asked an adjournment.

LATER. The Electoral Commission was in session to-day from ten until half past 4. At 5 the Commission went into secret session and remained therein until twenty mintes past 7, when it adjourned till to-morrow morning at half past 10 till to-morrow morning at half past 10

Many law points were suggested and these will be critically examined, there being more of them in this case than the Governor could blow his horn in the door of the executive in the cases of Florida and Louisiana his The Commission agreed to take a vote Legislature, but it would not do for the reat State of Oregon.

Mr. Merrick rose to close the argunent. He said in his own mind he held taken at 4 o'clock, an hour or more the same views that he did when he opened the argument in the case of Florida, but he owed it to his clients, and to the tribunel to the tribu until evening the vote in the joint meet-ing of the two Houses will not take
